

WORK THROUGH NIGHT
TO FINISH CURRENCYADMINISTRATION BILL WHIPPED
INTO FORM FOLLOWING WILSON'S DEMANDS.

READY FOR SIGNATURE

Legislators Hurry Bill for Final Verdict by President Tonight, to Clear Way for Holiday Recession.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The administration currency bill in its final form was reported to both houses of congress today to be written into law. The members of the conference committee which labored until dawn this morning threshing out the differences between the two houses, presented a perfected measure which followed closely the lines laid down by President Wilson in his demands for currency reform.

Work Hurried.

A general desire among legislators to get away from Washington for the Christmas holidays resulted in a program calculated by democratic leaders to place the bill before the president for his signature tonight and to clear the way for an immediate recess. In the house procedure the conference committee which labored until dawn this morning threshing out the differences between the two houses, presented a perfected measure which followed closely the lines laid down by President Wilson in his demands for currency reform.

Practically Agreed.

The conference agreed on practically all of the fundamentals of the measure as it passed the senate, including the provision that not less than eight nor more than twelve regional banks should be created. The reserve requirements for banks entering the system, which had been slightly let down by the senate, were strengthened in conference, an amendment allowing the use of the present bank notes and the proposed new federal reserve notes in bank reserves being stricken out. In order to make the change the house conferees called in Representative Buckley of Ohio a member of the house banking committee, who made an extended argument to show that the provision was unnecessary.

One Change.

The last long drawn-out struggle of the conference resulted from the administration's determination that the controller of the currency should be given a place on the federal reserve board which will control the new system. The senate conferees, evenly divided on this proposition, three senators joining with the house members of the committee in supporting the administration's contention. It was nearly daylight when the single shifting vote brought the conference to a close.

Adopt Amendment.

The conference accepted the senate amendment increasing the gold reserve behind the new notes to be issued from 33 1/2 per cent, as fixed in the house bill, to 40 per cent, with a graduated tax on depletion as arranged in the senate. It was understood that President Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo let the conferees know that they favored the increase.

Compromise.

A compromise plan for retiring the 2 per cent bonds on which the present currency is based was written into the bill by the conferees. Under the plan $36,000,000 worth of these bonds will be purchased each year, beginning two years after the system is placed in operation by the new regional banks. One-half of the holding each year will be retired by the sale of 3 per cent one year treasury notes which the banks must agree to renew each year for thirty years.

CLUB ORGANIZATION FOR YOUNG GIRLS IS SUCCESSFUL VENTURE

Start Correspondence Class in Domestic Science Among Civic Groups for Making Better Housewives.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Manhattan, Kans., Dec. 22.—Pive thousand Kansas girls who cannot afford to attend school have been given elementary instruction in a course of domestic science and arts during the past three years through Boys and Girls Clubs. Not satisfied with leading all other states in the percentage of her young people attending college, the state of Kansas planned, and put through, a system of education for those young people who were unable to attend school. Miss Frances L. Brown, of the Kansas Agricultural College, who has been in charge of the Girls' Home Economics Club since its inauguration, has received hundreds of letters from the girls and their parents, asking for explanations of her system. She has prepared the following article explaining the work:

Four years ago when a woman's time was given wholly to the extension of such lines of college work as the womanhood of the state could desire, one of the first demands was for such training in cooking and sewing as could be carried on by correspondence. Accordingly the girls' Home Economics Club work came into existence. The first year's work was a failure, not because the girls were not eager to organize clubs, but because the material to be used by these clubs was not prepared. Consequently the first summer was spent in preparing a course in simple lessons in sewing and another in cooking. With this material to distribute, the work was arranged under a systematic plan and from the beginning of the second year has prospered.

The plan by which these clubs are conducted is as follows: Wherever there is a group of girls who wish to take a correspondence course, a club is organized. Wherever it is possible, these clubs are affiliated with high schools and we find that as a rule, teachers make the best leaders for the clubs, though occasionally we have a woman who is a sister-in-law or a minister's wife or Sunday School teacher or a house wife who has a real interest in girls.

Plan Their Work.

The clubs meet usually once a week. Reports of what the students have accomplished at their homes during the preceding week, are read and discussed, the students giving their own experiences. Work is then planned for the ensuing week. These future lessons may be worked out in one of several ways. In some of the clubs the theory of the lesson is explained by the leader, or by the pupils, and then demonstrations are either given by the teacher alone or by several of the students. In many clubs the students take regular turns in giving demonstrations.

Meet in School.

The meeting places, of course, are optional. Many of the clubs meet regularly at a high school or grammar school building or at the home of the leader or one of the students. In other clubs it has been found that a convenient place for members to take turns entertaining the organization. When the meeting place is in a school room, members contribute necessary articles of equipment and material for the sewing work if demonstrations are planned. The school room is the meeting place, each girl works out her lesson in her own kitchen and prepares a paper which is delivered at the next meeting. At these meetings minutes are taken and every member is expected to contribute to the fund. The expense of these clubs are slight.

The college receives no pay for this work, and gives no credit for the courses, the work being solely a matter of self-improvement. The girls, and to carry to them as much education in Home Economics as possible. When taken continuously and thoughtfully, they will give to the girl who cannot otherwise obtain it, a practical, necessary knowledge of the subjects studied.

Second Year's Work.

The second year's work was met with such great approval and was so successful that the work was added to the work upon a better basis. Therefore the courses in cooking were revised and instead of being scattered lessons upon the various phases of the subject they are now arranged in a logical order. The first course is in the regular college courses. We have at present three courses in cooking and a fourth ready for the printer. The first two courses cover the elementary field of cooking in a logical order. The first course is in the regular college courses. The first course is in the regular college courses. We have at present three courses in cooking and a fourth ready for the printer. The first two courses cover the elementary field of cooking in a logical order.

Sewing Class.

In sewing, the first course is made up of elementary steps termed model work or hand sewing and is supplied with finished articles to be made. The second course is a tape and rule system of drafting and making of under garments. A third course is under preparation now and will deal with the subject of alterations of patterns, care and cleaning of clothing and kindred subjects. Another good feature about our Girls' Clubs work is that through its adoption many schools that cannot afford regular classes can give their girls the elementary training. Often, too the Girls' Club created an interest in Home Economics which results in a demand for such a department in the high school. During the past three years five thousand girls in the state have been members of these clubs and have taken one or two lessons a week. Last year seventy-seven clubs were organized. This was less than the year before because of the increased number of the established domestic departments by high schools.

Do You Believe
In Santa Claus

If not, there is something wrong in your mental equipment and you ought not to be permitted to roam at large at Christmas time.

The hundreds of letters addressed to Ole Saint Nick, recently published in these columns, tell the story of childhood faith.

It is a wonderful story so closely interwoven with the Star and the Manger that it is filled with sacred significance, and to many of us with hallowed memories.

A story which perpetuates itself through every succeeding generation, and makes Santa Claus a glad reality, because it inspires human hearts and hands to do his work.

If bubbling over with this kind of an inspiration, the Gazette can help you find an outlet, as more money is needed by the Christmas Committee.

BLAME PEDESTRIANS FOR AUTO ACCIDENTS

May Take "Finger Prints" of All Car Drivers and Strict Examination of Auto Owners.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, Dec. 22.—Coroner's figures show that the number of deaths in this city caused by automobiles has risen from 37 in 1907 to 177 for eleven months of 1913. Secretary of State Mitchell May, who has made a study of these figures, declares that while the increasing number of automobiles is partly responsible for the increase in accidents, pedestrians are largely to blame. He favors a more rigid examination of persons licensed to drive motor cars and recommends the creation of a special bureau for the prevention of street accidents. It is also suggested that all automobile drivers be "finger printed."

SUFFRAGETTE LEADER

Mrs. Pankhurst and Two Daughters at Ours Over Campaign Plans in London.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Dec. 22.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, militant suffrage leader, left London very quietly yesterday for Paris on the way to Switzerland to recuperate from her weakness brought about by a "hunger and thirst strike" from Holloway jail, from which she was released on December 17. She is accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Pankhurst, and her two daughters, Mrs. Christabel Pankhurst, the two daughters of the militant leader, in consequence of Miss Sylvia's determination to concentrate her campaign in the labor party. Miss Christabel disapproves of this scheme and is said to be withholding funds.

LAW GOES INTO EFFECT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 22.—"Dot It Now, Obey that Impulse." These are the mottoes being added today throughout the state by basophil swains who shrink from marriage under the provisions of the "personal purity" law enacted by the legislature as its last session. But six days remain in which the prospective bridegroom may obtain a marriage license and have the knot tied without submitting to the examination and receiving the certificate prescribed by the law. Licenses issued before January first may be presented up to January thirty-first and the ceremony performed without the "clean bill of health" but after New Year's Day, human will be enforced to wait upon Materia Medica.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE
STARTS "AT THE BOTTOM"
TO BE MASTER TURNER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Berlin, Dec. 22.—Crown Prince Wilhelm today started "at the bottom" to learn the trade of master turner. In accordance with the Hohenzollern tradition which requires that every son of the house learn a trade, the future Emperor of the German erected a complete turner's shop at Villa Langluth, where he today began taking lessons under the direction of an "ordinary" master turner of Dantzig. The Crown Prince, after learning the trade himself will personally teach it to his eldest son. When a boy, the Crown Prince learned wood carving. The Kaiser's brother, Prince Henry, is an expert turner. The sons of the Kaiser, Frederick Leopold, the Kaiser's cousin, recently took their apprentice examination in the cabinet making and locksmith trades.

ENGLAND WILL MAP
ANTARCTIC REGIONS

Explorer Shackhouse Will Conduct Expedition to Map Land Discovered by Captain Scott.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

London, Dec. 22.—Through exploration and mapping of King Edward VII land in the Antarctic, discovered in 1902 by the late Captain Scott, is to be undertaken by a scientific expedition that will start next year under the leadership of J. Foster Shackhouse.

"When we've got an immense stretch of land named after a British king, it would be a crime for England to leave it for explorers of other countries to map out for us," today said Shackhouse, who declares that in undertaking the work he is fulfilling a personal wish expressed to him by Captain Scott just before the fatal journey to the South Pole. The extent of the coastline alone of King Edward VII land is at least 1,100 miles. The importance of the expedition is emphasized by Sir Clements Markham, the noted geographer who is soliciting funds for the enterprise.

"I look upon the connection of Graham Land with King Edward VII land as one of the great remaining Polar achievements," he said, "and I believe it can only be done satisfactorily according to the plans proposed by Mr. Shackhouse. The difficulties are serious, but they can be overcome. With a stout ship, built especially for ice navigation, trained, able, and resourceful navigators, and favorable seasons, there is the prospect of another great addition to our knowledge of Antarctica."

REFUSE TO ALLOW LIGHTED
SIGNS ON FRENCH STREETS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Paris, Dec. 22.—Illuminated advertising doesn't make a bit with the French and the art has just received a severe blow here. A judgment has just been rendered forcing a landlord to pay damages and to order electric signs removed from his premises, the case being brought by his own tenants. The ground floor tenant operated a movie show, the owner of the building authorizing him to advertise a la Broadway. Upper floor tenants thereupon took action. The Paris newspapers are complaining because the "Boulevards are getting to be as hideous as the electric sign-lit streets of American cities."

GOVERNOR TO HEAR
PARDON PETITIONS

John Dietz, of Cameron Dam Fame, and Twenty-Nine Convicts Seek Pardon by Pardon.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 22.—Governor Francis E. McGovern today was scheduled to hear the arguments of attorneys and others upon petitions for pardon of twenty-nine convicts, among them John Dietz, the defender of Cameron Dam, now serving a life sentence for murder.

There is no file at the executive offices a petition bearing the names of thirty-four Wisconsin citizens, asking that Dietz be pardoned. Attorneys who will present Dietz' case to the governor declare that they can show conclusively that the bullet which killed Deputy Sheriff Oscar Harp during the famous "siege of Cameron Dam" could not have been fired by Dietz. The governor will hear the case before the pardon cases to come before the governor, thirteen are from Milwaukee county.

FACTION TO OPPOSE
CROWNHART AT MEET
OF LA FOLLETTE MEN

State Leader Promises to Smooth Waters for Naming of Candidate for State Governor.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 22.—With the conference of the La Follette leaders, to be held in Milwaukee during holiday week, drawing near, a variety of opinions are being expressed today as to what the La Follette policy will be in the campaign which will practically begin while the bells and whistles are welcoming the New Year and bidding farewell to the Old.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion that the Wisconsin leader desires C. J. Crownhart, at the present time a member of the industrial commission of the La Follette faction, to what the La Follette policy will be in the campaign which will practically begin while the bells and whistles are welcoming the New Year and bidding farewell to the Old.

It is said that many of the La Follette men who oppose the choice of Crownhart, it is said that the former is a La Follette wing, and a compromise in the attitude and with explanations as to why that attitude is theirs. It is said that many of the La Follette men who oppose the choice of Crownhart, it is said that the former is a La Follette wing, and a compromise in the attitude and with explanations as to why that attitude is theirs.

While the wish of La Follette's to dominate the situation is granted both by members of the La Follette faction and those arrayed against the Wisconsin senator, it is said that the former is willing to compromise in the interests of harmony and that if Hatton seems to find favor in the eyes of the many La Follette will submit to their will with what grace he may. One of the candidates of the situation is said to have caused La Follette considerable thought, is the apparently growing strength of the boom of Speaker Merlin Hull, who announced his receptivity of mind toward the gubernatorial candidacy soon after the last session of the legislature. Indications are that Hull will be a strenuous contender for the nomination all the way and that he will have a following that will have to be counted on.

FRENCH COURT DECIDES
NO IMPORTANCE TO AVIATORS
OF OWNERSHIP OF AIRCRAFT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Paris, Dec. 22.—There can be no ownership of the air according to an important decision of the court of Appeals rendered today at Lyons. At Lamotte-Beuvry, near Compiegne, the Clement-Bayard Company built a hangar for their airplanes. M. Coquerel, a Compiegne speculator purchased a tract of land in front of the hangar and tried to sell it to the airship company which refused to buy it on account of the alleged exorbitant price asked. The owner built about his property a 50-foot board fence topped with 12-foot iron spikes, covering the ground inside with barbed-wires and sharpened spikes. One of the Clement-Bayard army dirigibles came to grief on the spikes, and in a suit which followed Coquerel was ordered to remove the obstacles and pay for the damage done thereby. The Court of Appeals today upheld this decision.

URGES REPENTANCE AT ADVENT SEASON

REV. JOHN MCKINNEY OF CHRIST CHURCH GIVES CHRISTMAS SERMON.

AWAIT SECOND COMING

Scorners Who Doubt Day of Judgment Mock One of Most Important of Church's Teachings.

"Repentance is the keynote of the Advent season," said the Rev. John McKinney in his Sunday morning Christmas sermon at Christ church. Rev. McKinney talked especially in regard to the second coming of Christ and concerning the doubt which some persons expressed as to the fulfillment of the promise made by Christ himself. One reason why the second advent had been delayed might be found in the second epistle general of St. Peter, where it says: "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise as some men count slackness, but is long-suffering toward us not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." The hope that these men who scoff at the promise of judgment may repent and see their mistake which most of them know in their own hearts, is one of the important reasons that the second coming of Christ has been delayed.

"Peter in his epistle foretold," said the Rev. McKinney, "that this question as to why Christ did not return as he had promised, would be often repeated by scoffers and doubters. But why do these men disturb themselves over the coming of Christ? They are as well endowed as other men who are Christians and they receive all the benefits of nature and the gifts of the seasons. Why should they be disturbed by some nature event? Observe the note of impatience which characterizes the questioning of such persons. They are impatient for the thing to be done as soon as it is promised. The trouble with them is they treat God as an equal, and fail to remember that God is in heaven and men on earth.

"But with the impatience there is a note of doubt, and also a note of fear. It is half doubt, half fear which are the attitudes of mind that go a long way toward proving that in their innermost hearts they accept the truth of our Lord's promise to come again.

"The second coming of Christ is one of the fundamentals of Christian doctrine. It is as important as the other great and compelling principles which underlie our religion. Why should we leave out the day of judgment? What has the Christian to fear of this second advent? He has nothing to fear and he has everything to hope. Only the scoffers, the men and women who have dissipated what God has given them, fear. The promise of a new heaven and a new earth carries no terror for the Christian.

"But why does he delay his coming? For one thing, two thousand years are as a day in the sight of God who knows no past or future, only the eternal present. We owe our very existence to God who created us through his infinite love, and he asks in our love in return, as an appreciation for what he has done for us.

"And in his mercy God is not willing that all should perish but that all may come to repentance. Is there any other religion in which there are such words? For the scoffers who are many, and for the infidels of whom there is too large a number, still there is hope. But men cannot satisfy their own passions and their own desires, and then repent as if turning the page of a book. They are not sure of tomorrow in the faith of the Christian who depends on God we find no fear of judgment, only a great underlying hope for the second advent.

"In Christ's life we find the example of purest faith, and deepest trust. Scorners might well profit by reading again the story of his sacrifice for us."

BAPTIST SCHOLARS WILL PRESENT CHRISTMAS PLAY

On Tuesday evening the Sunday school Christmas play, entitled "St. Paul and the Christians," will be presented at the parlors of the Baptist church. The cast consists of sixteen principal characters and a chorus of seventy members. The committee in charge, Mrs. E. H. Taylor, Mrs. G. E. Jones, Mrs. W. Harrington and E. C. Currier, have arranged for an excellent program. Members of the Sunday school choir made plans for the distributing of Christmas cheer to families in the city.

HAS RECEIVED WORD OF BROTHER'S DEATH

Mrs. George R. Barker Gets Message Telling of Sudden Death of Her Brother, S. S. Cargill, at Minneapolis.

Mrs. George R. Barker, St. Lawrence avenue, has received word of the death of her brother, Sylvester S. Cargill, who passed away suddenly Saturday afternoon at his home at Minneapolis. He was among the most prominent members of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce and president of the Victoria Elevator Company.

According to word received today Mr. Cargill appeared on "Change Saturday" in his usual good spirits and seemed to be in the best of health. As his custom was, he went on the trading floor for a time and attended to his other work in his office. He laughed and joked with his friends and even remarked, in passing, how well he felt. Just before lunch he played a game of checkers a contest which had been a favorite hobby of his for years. The Chamber closed at noon and he went to his home, 2601 Portland avenue.

After luncheon he sat down to read a few minutes and fell into a deep sleep, from which he never awakened. Death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Cargill was born on Long Island, N. Y., 65 years ago. He came west with his parents, who located near Janesville and lived here until he reached young manhood, when he left for the Dakotas, where his brothers had located and were engaged in the grain business. He spent some time at Albert Lea, Minnesota, in the flour and grain business.

Just twenty-seven years ago he removed to Minneapolis, where he has lived ever since. Although never a spectacular trader he has been prominently identified with the growth of the grain business in the northwest and was one of the most influential members of the chamber.

His family has been for more than half a century identified with the grain markets and the development of Minnesota and the Dakotas. He was one of four brothers who organized companies and for many years operated elevators in the farming districts along the railroad north and west of Minneapolis. The other brothers were the late W. V. Cargill of La Crosse, Wis.; Samuel W. Cargill of Minneapolis, who died seven years ago; and Albert L. Cargill of Deephaven, Lake Minnetonka, who is now living.

Sylvester Cargill is also survived by his wife and his sons, Robert G. Cargill and Samuel D. Cargill, and a daughter, Helen G. Cargill. Mrs. Barker, who was Mr. Cargill's only sister, left today for Minneapolis to attend the funeral, which will be held on Tuesday.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR GEORGE WILSON

Last Rites for Former Janesville Resident Held at Sister's Home This Afternoon.

Funeral services for George W. Wilson, former Janesville resident, who passed away at his home at Sioux City, Iowa, last Thursday night, were held at two o'clock this afternoon at the home of his sister, Miss Sarah Wilson, South Academy street. The remains arrived here Sunday afternoon accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and son, Frank Wilson, of Sioux City, William Wilson, a brother, of Platt, South Dakota, and Miss Mary Wilson of Janesville.

Rev. Henry Williamson of the Trinity Episcopal church read the funeral service and the remains were laid to rest at Oak Hill cemetery. The pall bearers were G. P. Kimball, Edward Kelly, Louis Paul, Edward Howland, Walter Stoddard and George Phillips.

Mr. Wilson was born in Janesville Feb. 22, 1859. On going west he located first at Huron, South Dakota, and engaged in business. In 1885 he married Miss Fannie A. Main. He is survived by his widow and one son, Frank M. Wilson, besides several brothers and sisters.

Mr. Wilson came to Sioux City in November, 1885, and lived there since that time, being proprietor of the Sioux City Box Company. His concern has enjoyed a gradual growth. He began by making cigar boxes in a small way, principally for small manufacturers. Later he built a small factory at West Seventh and Cook streets, and then he added a department for the manufacture of paper boxes.

MASTER CARPENTERS OF STATE TO MEET IN THIS CITY SOON

Second Annual State Convention Will Be Held in Janesville January 9 and 10.

Janesville carpenters and contractors are making arrangements for the second annual convention of the Wisconsin Master Carpenters' Association, which will be held in this city on Friday and Saturday, January 9 and 10. Thirty or forty delegates from local organizations which are affiliated with the state society will be present, and an elaborate program of entertainment and business will be arranged. Meetings will be held at Eagles' hall.

The state association was organized a year ago in Milwaukee and includes local societies in half a dozen or more cities in the state. The delegation of Janesville contractors took a prominent part in the organization work as a result of which the second state convention was secured for this city. J. Van Pool of this city is one of the vice presidents, and Frederickson of Madison is the president. New officers will be elected at the convention. Milwaukee, Madison, La Crosse, Waupun, Watertown and Fond du Lac locals will have delegates at the meeting here, and prominent among the matters to be discussed will be the extension of the Master Carpenters' association to locals in other cities throughout the state. Within a year's time, it is predicted, practically every city that has a carpenters' local will be enrolled in the state association.

The Janesville Builders' Exchange, which has just been organized, is an example of the work which the Master Carpenters' Association is furthering, and importance to the contractors will receive consideration.

It was hoped that the local builders' exchange would be completed at the time of the convention, but it is not probable that all of the exhibits will be in place by the date. The first exhibit, J. A. Hennings' cement blocks, was installed today.

Local material men will derive a great amount of benefit from the exchange and the semi-monthly meetings which are held in connection with it. Intricacies of the contractor's business will be discussed and specific problems will be studied. At the last subject treated and at the next meeting Attorney M. C. Jeffris will go into the question of liens.

TWELVE BOYS ENTERTAINED IN HONOR OF BIRTHDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hiller entertained Saturday at their home, 1404 Highland avenue, twelve young boys in honor of their son's sixth birthday. The afternoon was very pleasantly spent playing various games, after which a dainty lunch was served. Master Theodore was the recipient of numerous gifts. Those present were George Stanton, Ade Grulley, Roland Grulley, William Knuth, Robert Knuth, Irvin Brown, La Roy Sykes, Freddie Strampe, Ralph Sykes, Roy Hiller, Raymond Gifford and Theodore Hiller, Jr.

Sport Snap Shots

President-elect Tener of the National league has come forth at the time of his official election, to say a pretty thing or two regarding how he will do when once firmly settled in his new office. In his inaugural address he declared that it was his plan to work without fatigue in an effort to put our national diversion on a higher plane, and he also felt sure that in doing this he would have the complete support and co-operation of all the National league club owners. Mr. Tener has outlined a most commendable program. Nowhere, certainly, could a greater work be done in this way than in the National league. However, as a place to look for co-operation the National league is negligible. The supply of co-operation in the National league is singularly scanty. Its affairs for so long have been torn between factions, and brawls have so abounded in their meetings that it would appear that Mr. Tener has a good sized job on his hands. However, if any one is the person to handle the situation, the unanimity of his election and his popularity should go a great way in bringing about the ends he hopes to achieve. And if he makes peace and happiness where strife and discord previously held their sway he will have accomplished much. It is to be hoped that when Mr. Tener gives up his office he will not have to forsake his former benefactors with unpleasantries as did the late Mr. Lynch.

Charley White, the Chicago lightweight, started punching the bag in Bill O'Connell's gym that he might bolster up his rather frail physique. It was about five years ago that physicians told him to get more exercise or he'd have to remove to another climate. His lungs had given him some little worry. And so he entered in on the gym work with never an idea that he was to develop into a scrapper of repute. In fact, at the time Charley not only had no aspirations for the life of a pug, but he had a downward look on the life. He didn't think he would ever like the fight game at all. But while working around in O'Connell's gym he began to absorb a little boxing interest and gradually found himself working out with other amateur scrappers and beating most of them. Six months later he fought his first professional battle. And since then he has developed wonderfully. Undoubtedly he is one of the fastest and cleverest of the lightweight. Only within the last year, however, has he been able to show a punch with a sting to it and his wallop is growing with every scrap. It isn't surprising that White should have turned out to be a boxer, as he comes from a family of fighters, several of his brothers having won pugilistic repute.

The Cleveland amateur boxing team bids fair to cop off the national championship from the manner in which they have managed to clean up all who have opposed them to date. It is confidently expected by Secretary George Schneider that the Cleveland scrappers will be able to walk away with things at Boston in February, when they take part in the National A. A. U. tournament there. Recently they managed to dispose of the Pittsburg amateur boxers who visited Cleveland, and Pittsburg was thought to have one of the fastest teams in the country. It is not surprising that there should be quite a bit of amateur boxing talent in the Sixth City, as the interest in the fight game there runs high. Most every newsie on any corner is a light devotee and perhaps an amateur pug of standing. There is always plenty of material in Cleveland for preliminary fights and curtain raisers.

The Tinker deal at Cincinnati and the ensuing trouble has brought to light a little information regarding the ownership of the Reds. It appears that Garry Herrmann is owner of the club, his name only. The Fleiselman brothers, Julius and Max, the yeast kings, are really the owners of the Cincinnati club, having acquired the biggest part of the stock by gradually buying it up. Mr. Herrmann was allowed to retain his title of president mostly because of his job on the national commission. All of the above has the earmarks of facts and the matter will be thoroughly settled when Fleets brings his claim to the directors of the league. Mr. Herrmann's name for while is apt to be a pretty stony and uneven one and it isn't unlikely that as an active head of Cincinnati baseball affairs he is no more. The dis-pleasure he managed to stir up among the real Red owners by his Tinker deal and the fact that the deal as first made was declared n. g. shows pretty well who is not boss at Cincy.

Rings in History.

Signet rings are mentioned in the Bible, and we find the ring in those days, to have been a sign of honor as it is with us. During the war a lover who wished to specially honor his bride sent the gold money to the goldsmith with which to fashion the wedding ring, for in those days the heavier and broader the band the better, and girls used to measure the width and "heft" the circles to see whose was the broadest and heaviest, and thereby to establish a social standing unimpeachable.

Altar Dedicated to Fortune.

In the baths of a Roman fort at present being excavated at Summerston, England, an altar has been unearthed "Dedicated to the Goddess Fortune, by Caecilius Nepos, tribune."

The baths served the purpose of a club, where the men would while away their time by gambling, and the altar was no doubt dedicated by the Roman officer after a particularly fortunate coup. The inscription on the altar may lead to important historical conclusions.

WEATHER FORECAST

Weather continued fair with slowly rising temperature tonight and Tuesday.

IMPORTING ARGENTINE CORN.
It will come as a surprise to not merely the agricultural, but to the business forces of America to learn that corn grown in Argentina has during the past two months been imported into Texas through Galveston. In a letter regarding this importation, the Wichita Mill and Elevator company of Wichita Falls, Texas, makes the following statements:
"The importation of Argentine corn is made possible because of the unusual corn shortage and the resulting high domestic prices in some portions of the United States. In addition the removal of the tariff of fifteen cents per bushel of fifty-six pounds, has had its influence in connection with this new feature of importation. Corn is now admitted duty free and as the price of domestic corn was so much above the world's market price, the importation from Argentina resulted. We found it possible to buy this corn in Argentina and ship to Galveston, and from that port as well as from various other gulf and Atlantic ports, it can be distributed from 200 to 300 miles inland, depending somewhat on the local rates from the ports to destination. However, there is not sufficient of this corn to materially affect the prices in the United States, for it was estimated that Argentina only had about 15,000,000 to 18,000,000 bushels surplus, a very large portion of which will probably go to the continental section of Europe. However, some of it will go to the various Atlantic ports for distribution."
Argentine beef is also being freely imported and between the corn and the beef the farmer is likely to feel the effects of free trade.

AN EXPENSIVE GUEST.

William Jennings Bryan is proving himself an expensive guest for the various cities that entertain him as their guest, seeking to honor the man and the office which he occupies in the nation—secretary of state. Just as a sample of Mr. Bryan's generosity the Loudoun county, Virginia, farmers invited Mr. Bryan to be their guest at the Heavy Draft Horse show, an event in Virginia circles. They sought to honor the man and the secretary of state of Mr. Wilson's cabinet. Mr. Bryan arrived, was royally entertained. He was dined, fêted and grape-juiced and the true southern hospitality shown him. He made a short speech, impromptu, at the big horse show and returned by his special train, paid for by his hosts, to Washington. Then later he sent his hosts a bill for $300 for his speech. It was a cut rate, he informed them, from his regular figure of five hundred, in view of his entertainment, perhaps. The bill was paid but it is safe to say Mr. Bryan will not be the guest of this same farmers' association again.

Really, Mr. Bryan owes it to himself to have a card prepared for his future visits as guests of municipalities or associations so that his hosts can know just how much their entertainment is going to cost them. It might also be an interesting fact to learn whether Mr. Bryan charges President Wilson for his services in attending the cabinet meetings and how much.

The Chicago Tribune makes the following suggestion for the rate card idea which is not a bad one and would fill the bill exactly so that there could be no more unfortunate happenings where the hosts fail to pay their guest for his oratory while enjoying their hospitality. The card suggested is as follows:

Neighborhood gatherings, christenings, children's fetes, patriotic uprisings, rural meetings, county fairs, Jeffersonian assemblages, club affairs, church socials, lawn parties, strawberry fetes, house raisings, corn husking, etc., etc., promptly attended to.

Terms—Cash in advance. Twenty or more adults, not more than fifty miles from Washington, $400. Children's meetings, half price. Ministerial gatherings, 50 per cent reduction. Army and navy meetings not attended. Twenty or more adults more than fifty miles from Washington, $500. Smaller gatherings of politicians desiring diplomatic appointment in Washington, no charge. In case of a Mexican crisis, Japanese crisis, or other embarrassment to the department of state, the rate for the secretary's services will be doubled.

Is making gifts at Christmas time. A duty come to be. Expected of us by our friends; I give, and you give me.

I'd rather think it is that we Recall God's gift to us. Christ's words, "In that ye did to these."

Impel our giving thus.

Is this kind feeling in our hearts That wells for friends so dear, Then overflows to all mankind, Result of Christmas cheer?

I'd rather think it caused by song Of angels in our ears: The song of "Peace, good will to men" Resounding down the years.

Are children made so glad this day Because they are our own? Love seeks to make them happy now. Ere childhood's days have flown?

I'd rather think it is because Christ was a little child. He loves them with a greater love And keeps them god and mild.

Is "Wish you Happy Christmas time" Some thoughtless words we say? I'd rather think it brings to mind Christ's birth on Christmas Day.

LYRIC-MAJESTIC

Six Reels of new Licensed Photoplays Daily.

The superb three part Kalem adaptation of Dion Boucicault's masterpiece, "THE OCTOBER," is scheduled to appear at the Lyric and Majestic, Thursday.

"THE OCTOBER" has been produced in the theatres of every civilized country. Millions of people have shed tears in sympathy with the unfortunate Zoe. The Kalem photoplay version is even more powerful than the stage production. Its wonderful portrayal of the conditions which prevailed in the South prior to the Civil war, has caused this immortal drama to be classed as one of the choicest gems of the American stage, and won undying fame for the author. The villainy of McCloskey—the love of Walmore the Indian, for Little Paul—the terrible fire aboard the steamer—the nobility of George—the death of Zoe, the October, who takes her life rather than return to slavery—all go to make this drama a human document of imperishable interest.

BUYERS FROM AWAY

Janesville the Mecca for Southern Wisconsin Shoppers—Stocks Most Complete.

Never in the history of the Christmas shopping in Janesville have the merchants had a more uniform increase in trade than during the present season. It would be pretty hard to find a pessimist among the owners of the various shops throughout the city and all can see the doughnut most clearly and the hole looks mighty small to them.

The fact that Janesville shops this year have a most remarkable display of holiday assortments is perhaps one reason for the successful sales and the other cause can be ascribed to the fact that the buyers have informed the public of their expectations, stocks and it has attracted shoppers from outside the city.

Janesville is the natural center of the shopping for the Southern Wisconsin. Excellent train service makes it accessible to all points of the compass and trade has even been drawn from Madison, where boasts a wide of their excellent shops. Rockford has been the share of the buyers and every interurban city every passenger train leaving the city in the afternoon has been thronged with shoppers with huge bundles, showing they have bought in Janesville.

The country may be going to the eternal bow wows, according to the rapid editorial writers commending the upsurge and the temporary measures of the Democratic administration, but right here in Wisconsin, with banner crops, business is as good as it has been in years. The people all apparently are money and for Christmas and are spending it.

The stores themselves are most attractive and filled with wonderful creations brought from all parts of the globe. Many merchants have sold much more rapidly than expected and still the demand keeps up. Everyone is happy and everyone is optimistic and the Christmas spirit prevails. While these last few days will witness a decided rush of late shoppers, still the trade during the whole month has been most excellent.

In speaking of the conditions some of the merchants voiced the following opinions:

J. L. Ford & Son—"Our business for this year is about 25 per cent ahead of what it was last year."

E. L. Howard—"My business during the past year has been very satisfactory and I find that the last three months as well as the entire year's business will run ahead of last year."

Olin & Olson—"Our business this year has been fine and will run much in advance of last year."

F. J. Bailly & Son—"Our business this year while handicapped by the fire of last spring, on the whole, will run ahead of last year and we are very well satisfied with the outcome of the last three months as well as with the entire year."

Smith Pharmacy—"The business of this store so far this year will exceed that done last year; in fact, we are well ahead of last year, or any other year."

A. G. Metzinger—"We haven't noticed any hard times or let-up in business and collections are soon."

J. J. Hinterschied—"Our business is fully 10 per cent greater, in all departments than last year."

J. F. Schooff—"My business, shows a good increase over last year."

Mod Studio—"Our receipts are in considerable excess over last season's."

H. L. McManis—"The month of December business on our books shows a substantial gain over last December."

T. P. Burns—"This whole year has been a banner year for this store."

H. F. Nott, Pianist—"My sales this season far exceed those of last year for the same time."

George B. Patzinger, Jeweler—"Saturday, Dec. 20, 1913, was the largest day I ever had and December as a whole will be the far ahead of last year."

Skelly's Book Store—"This year's Christmas business will equal anything I ever had."

McCue & Buss—"Best month we ever had, excepting none."

Sutherland's Book Store—"Have never had a better month and I know it was coming when I put in a larger stock than before."

C. W. DeHart—"A splendid increase marks this year's business with me. W. H. Ashcraft—"The last four months have been the biggest in the history of this store."

Pond & Bailey—"Our trade this year has been in advance of that of last year."

Chas. S. Putnam—"Friday and Saturday's trade was considerably greater than the two same days a year ago."

T. J. Ziegler Clothing Co.—"Our business exceeds that of a year ago."

The Golden Eagle—"There has been no decline in our volume of sales. In fact, they are better than preceding seasons."

Amos Rehberg Co.—"A splendid Xmas trade has been accorded us in our new location."

J. M. Hostwick & Sons—"Our business shows a substantial increase over last year. It is making us 'go some' for best December 1912, but from figures at hand and favorable weather conditions December 1913 will go ahead of any month we ever had by several lengths."

J. P. Baker—"Holiday business has been good, an increase over the last year's sales."

Homes Bros.—"Business has increased 60 per cent over last year's business."

Hall Huebel—"Our Christmas and fall business is the biggest in our history."

Sheldon Hardware Co.—"Our Christmas trade is up to average in every way except on sleds, skates and skis."

Frank Douglas—"Our December trade has not been extra on account of so many stores having been sold during the cold spell in October."

McGuffin & Caldwell—"Our business is way ahead of last year, and we are of course very much pleased. Business has shown an increase each month during the year over the corresponding month of the year previous which shows a healthy growth."

E. W. Lowell—"My business has doubled this year over last. This is due, in part, to a better location and additional capital investment, but the rest of the increase is legitimate increase in trade."

In their hall Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 23rd, at 2:30 p. m. Anna Merse, Secretary.

PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS AT THE COUNTY FARM

Christmas Tree Wednesday Evening, Chicken Dinner on the Twenty-fifth.

Christmas will be celebrated at the county farm by the usual Christmas tree on Wednesday evening, with an entertainment at which Mrs. Janet B. will give one of her readings, which have delighted the inmates in seasons past. Mr. Barless will collect any gifts that friends may wish to send to the farm inmates if they are left at O. D. Bates' store before four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon.

Christmas day the inmates will all enjoy a chicken dinner with mashed potatoes, scalloped corn, pickles, bread and butter, tea and dessert. It promises to be a happy time for the unfortunate who make their home there, and Supt. and Mrs. Barless are doing everything to make it so.

ASSUMES CHARGE OF THE BIG CARNIVAL

Former Mayor John C. Nichols Promises Bang Up Affair Last Two Days of the Month.

"It is going to be the real thing," said former Mayor John C. Nichols this afternoon, in speaking of the big Illus. Carnival. "It is going to be a genuine carnival, the only difference being that we are going to hire the exhibits and make the profits and not some carnival company."

Nichols was elected general manager of the combined shows the latter part of last week, when W. B. Smith, who is to leave the city, was forced to resign and had taken hold of the affair with a vim that assures its success.

"With R. R. Jay, who has charge of the properties, I am going to Chicago this afternoon," Mr. Nichols said, "to secure some of the best attractions possible for the various shows to be held at the Auditorium. Of course, there will be the regular local burlesque attractions, that are always a feature and men to have a genuine show that are well worth the admission fee. I have several good attractions already mapped out and by this time tomorrow expect to have some good shows booked."

"We will give the public plenty of music, two bands, twenty-eight pieces of music, lots of excitement and the carnival spirit that always goes with the watching of the old year out and the new year in. In the words of the press agent, 'There will be something doing every minute and the minutes will seem like seconds to the merry makers. It is certainly going to be a big time.'"

The bill posters are busy and before night Tuesday, all southern Wisconsin will know that fun is congenial in Janesville on December 30th and 31st.

Perfume sale at McCue & Buss drug store. All regular 50¢ per ounce bulk odors at 25¢ per ounce until after Christmas only.

ACCOST TWO GIRLS ON A DARK STREET

Unknown Youths Give Two Young Women Entreaty to State School for the Blind a Bad Score.

Two young women, who are employed at the state school for the blind, were accosted by some unknown youths shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday evening on Center avenue near the Millmore quarry. The girls were returning home after spending the evening in their rooming place, and lost no time in getting to the school. The street at this point is very dark and has been the scene of similar episodes in which persons connected with the state school are injured. The matter was reported to Chief of Police Ransom this morning by Superintendent J. T. Hooper.

WOULD OBSERVE NEW YEARS AS FATHERS' AND SONS' DAY; ANOTHER FAD SAYS MAYOR

Mayor Fathers received a letter today, from a committee of prominent Cleveland, Ohio, citizens, which suggested that New Years be set aside as "Father and Sons' Day." "It's just another one of those fads," said Mr. Fathers, "and it may be all right, but I think we had better let our Mothers' Day before we take on anything new of this nature. The sons need looking after; there's no doubt about that." The mayor of Cleveland has issued a proclamation to observe New Years for observing the new movement, and an effort is being made to have the same done in five hundred cities of the nation.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH PLANS A CONTRIBUTION OF CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

The Finns place their money and valuables in holes in the ground and cover them with a big leaf. Such treasure is sacredly respected by all who pass it; but, in the rare event of a man wishing to borrow of his neighbor during his absence, he will take only the smallest sum he requires, and place a message in the hole telling of his urgent need, promising to repay the amount on a specified date. And he will invariably keep his word, for the Finn is inviolable in his independence.

Too Quick With Comment.
Riggs (facetiously)—"This is a picture of my wife's first husband." Diggs—"Silly looking guy! But say, I didn't know your wife was married before she met you." Riggs—"She wasn't. This is a picture of myself when I was twenty-five."

A CHRISTMAS FEAST.
The actual Christmas dinner will be served at the Hotel Milwaukee from 1:00 p. m. until 2:30, at 75¢ a plate. Advance table reservations for both Christmas and New Years are urged by the management.

DELIGHTFUL CANTATA BY METHODIST CHOR

Chorus of Thirty Singers Under Direction of Miss Emily Sewell, Ably Present Difficult Composition.

A rare treat was given the congregation at the Carnegie Memorial Baptist Episcopal church last evening, when the senior chorus choir of thirty members ably presented the Christmas cantata, which was a cantata, written by Hawley, on "The Christ Child."

For two hours, the choir members took part in various solos, duets, trios, quartets, double quartets and choruses, the melodies being most harmonious in their delivery.

The real credit coming from the composition given so well, goes to Miss Emily Sewell, director, who spent many evenings in hard practice with the members of the choir, in preparation. She selected the parts to fit the singers, which required some keen judgment at all times.

The church was crowded, both in the morning and evening. The young people's choir rendered two difficult selections at the morning service. The members of this choir, together with the younger primary rolls of the Sunday school, marched through the aisles of the church, taking seats in the front. While marching the singers rendered "Holy Night, Silent Night."

UNSETTLED WEATHER FOR CHRISTMAS DAY

United States Weather Service Predicts Overcast Skies and Snow Flurries for Present Week.

We may have a white Christmas after all if the weather sharp at Washington is not at error in their prognostications. Should the snow flurries come it may give the small boy a chance to use his sled, his skis or some other real Christmas gift. It will add to the spirit of the season, the rule for the Christmas morning, that have been handed down from the long ages of the past, from the days of Thor to Christ, when the honest now may play the "Yule log."

And wise men play the "Yule log." However, here is the forecast sent out from Washington: Overcast, unsettled weather is forecast for Christmas. Temperatures

AMSTERDAM

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

AMSTERDAM, the metropolis of Holland, is firmly imbedded in the mud near the Zuyder Zee, and rises precipitously in spots several feet above the level of the sea. It is the terminus of three railroads, a dozen steamship lines and several dozen canals, and contains over a million souls, a majority of which are wood-en.

Amsterdam was first discovered in the thirteenth century and has enjoyed great vicissitudes in the last seven hundred years. In the old days, one of the principal diversions of the European tyrants was to go over into Holland and kill off Amsterdam. Whenever the city had accumulated a hundred thousand people and a good chamber of commerce some tyrant would swarm down on it and mess it up until there would be enough voters left to hold a ward caucus. Finally, the citizens adopted the plan of cutting the dykes whenever the enemy got too insufferable. After that the Amsterdamers lived in peace and dampness, developing webbed feet and an enormous maritime commerce.

Amsterdam is noted for its streets, which are deep enough to float the fattest canal boat. It has a number of tall, thin houses, which stand with their feet in the water and cannot be reached by book agents unless he is a good swimmer. Taxicabbing in Amsterdam is a difficult and dangerous adventure owing to the rough and turbulent cobblestone streets, but the owner of a good sea-worthy tub can travel from ward to ward with the greatest ease. Amsterdam is noted for its quaint suburbs, which are connected with the city by electric boats, canal boats, gasoline boats, sail boats, steam boats and canoes.

Amsterdam was once famous for its painters. Van Dyke lived in Amsterdam, and any Antwerpian who came up there and bragged about Rembrandt was sent home on ice. Amsterdam was also at one time the greatest banking center in Europe, and a man who had a bank there was proud about it as a member of the New York Stock Exchange. Most of the diamonds of the world now come to Amsterdam in their crude country state to be pared down and given an air of refinement.

Amsterdam is greatly beloved by tourists, because of its quaint houses with no visible means of support, its large acreage of early Dutch art and its honest, hard-working guilders, which does as much work as an American dollar, though it is only worth forty cents.

Habits of Flowers.

The common "four o'clock" almost always closes its flowers at that hour and so many plants have that instinct that Linnaeus made a floral clock of flowering plants, each of which had its time of closing. The wood sorrel not only drops its leaves and shuts its purple veined flowers when it rains, but does the same if the ground near by is struck with a stick. The family of the oxalis has the same habit.

It Certainly Is.

It is easier for the average woman to muster up courage to face a mouse than openly defy fashion.—The Chicago News.

SUCH IS LIFE.

Pat's Effective Retort.

An Irishman knocked at a door one day and asked the lady of the house (who was very ugly) if she could help him, as he was hard up and on the road. "Indeed, I'll not," she replied; "and if you don't clear off out of this I'll call my husband, who is a policeman, and he'll come and take you." "I quite believe ye, missis," retorted Pat; "he'd take anything, when he took you."

"A Little More Cider, Too."

A great deal of the so-called champagne drunk in this country is really made in France of American apples. The apples are here cored, sliced and dried, sent to France, and there converted into cider. Carbonic acid gas is added, with yeast and a little flavoring powder, and some of the connoisseurs smack their lips over it, under the delusion that it is real champagne.

When He Might Have Lapsed.

"Not even when his last match blew out in a high wind," asked Mr. Hutton, at Greenwich police court, when it was stated that a defendant never used bad language.—London Mail.

Heartbeats in Different Positions.

The heart of a standing man beats 81 times a minute, of a sitting one 71 times. When the man is lying down its beats are reduced to 66 a minute.

ANTICIPATE A MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON IN COUNTY Y. M. C. A.

Committee Draws Plans for Year at Conference and Unanimous Saturday.

The Y. M. C. A. held a most successful semi-annual meeting Saturday afternoon from four to six at the local Y. M. C. A. building. At six a banquet was served under the direction of J. C. Kline of the association. Short talks on the work of the county leaders and the various communities, showing what could be done to further the success already attained, were given.

At the meeting of the county committee, representatives from five of the six communities were present. They are: Solon Cooper, Clinton; D. M. Spicer, Shopshire; James McWay, Rock Prairie; E. M. Holston and Dr. A. S. Maxson, both of Milton Junction; and L. E. Anderson and C. W. Birkenmeyer of Edgerton. Frank Lowry of Footville was unable to be present.

The committee approved the plan for the arrangement of a relay race to take place in the spring. All the groups in the county will organize relay teams and each individual runner will be asked to run one-half mile. There will be enough runners on each team to cover the distance from their respective districts to Janesville, where the race will end. A banner will be awarded to the winning team, making the best time. The committee also voted to have a boys' conference to be held probably in February, at one of the township quarters. Boys from all over Rock county will be present, between sixty and one hundred being present at this meeting.

John Brown, international county work secretary of New York City, will spend three days with the Rock county boys' groups, and make an effort to arouse more interest, the committee being enthusiastic over the proposal. Mr. Brown is famous from the recreation standpoint, and his physical outdoor ideas have met with success in every other county organization, where he has had the privilege of serving.

A general approval was expressed on the work accomplished during the first year of the organization in Rock county. The start in this work began last June, under the able leadership of Secretary L. A. Markham, who has achieved pronounced success in organizing ten groups in the six communities, namely, Milton Junction, Edgerton, Clinton, Footville, Rock Prairie and Shopshire.

At the conclusion of the county meeting, a leaders' conference, preceded by a banquet, was held. The program was very interesting, and the speakers showed unusual enthusiasm for the work at hand, which is most encouraging for the future.

The first speaker was H. A. Moehlenpau of Clinton, chairman of the state county work committee. His arguments were based on just how great men in the past had become leaders, mainly through their own efforts to make use of the chances given them. "Everybody can become a leader, if they serve faithfully in their appointed task," was his statement.

A. E. Matheson, a member of the state county work committee, was the other speaker of the meeting. His talk was on the happy and successful life which is one lived for others. He inspired the boys greatly, the latter determining to make every chance count in upholding the association work in their respective townships.

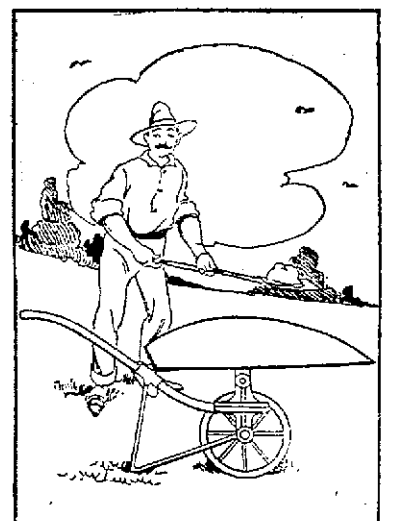

A discussion of "Boy Psychology," was given by Robert West of Milton Junction and Secretary L. A. Markham. Thirty-five were present at the banquet, seven from Footville, six from Milton Junction, three from Shopshire, six from Clinton, seven from Edgerton and one from Rock Prairie, in addition to P. M. Yordy, physical director at the local building, Secretary Markham, A. E. Matheson, Howard Hubbell of Milwaukee, state county work secretary, and A. E. Turner, of the international committee Y. M. C. A., at present a worker in Mexico, on the Christian problem.

A great interest is being displayed in the work. Hon. John M. White, who is president of the state Y. M. C. A., is taking an active part, together with Mr. Matheson and Secretary Markham.

SELF-DUMPING BARROW

Press Down on Handles and Scoop Is Automatically Tilted.

Now that concrete construction has made such strides, the wheelbarrow crop has grown larger and developed some novelties. One of the latter is the self-dumping barrow invented by an Illinois man. This wheelbarrow has the bed mounted high above the wheels on a pair of double-decker bearing members that have a pivotal connection. The handle runs down to these members and acts as a crowbar, its fulcrum being a rest that is fixed to its center. To dump the barrow the workman lets the handles down until the rest touches the ground. He then presses down on the outer ends of the handles and the bearings rise on the inner ends and tilt the bed of the barrow forward, dumping its contents out the front, instead of spilling them over the sides, as with most barrows. Empty, the bed returns to place when the handles are raised.

Snake Put Town in Darkness.
A 20-inch green snake put out all the electric lights in the town of Mulins, S. C. In the morning linemen found it tangled in some wires on a pole. It had crawled to the top of the pole and coming in contact with the wires forced a short circuit, put out the lights and incidentally died.

Discoverer of Iodine.

To very few people does the name of Bernard Courtois signify anything, yet it is to Bernard Courtois that the world owes the discovery of iodine. A chemist of Dijon, he presented one hundred years ago the notice of his discovery to the academy. His native town will place a simple memorial slab on the wall of the house in which he lived and died.—Paris Letter to the London Telegraph.

No Need to Be Polite.

Roland, three years old, had a peculiar habit of going into a neighboring store and asked for candy. After saying please, he was always given some of the desired sweets. One day he came in and asked for some, as usual, but omitted the "please." The clerk gently reminded him, but was interrupted by the following response: "Don't have to say please today; got a penny."

To Heal Chapped Skins.

Skins that have been chapped and made rough by exposure can be relieved by applying with a bit of old linen a lotion consisting of one ounce of rose water, half an ounce of glycerine, half a teaspoonful of borax, and three drops of benzoin.

About Stamps.

Do not lick stamps. The best way is to moisten the envelope and set the stamp. When stamps stick together, do not soak them apart, but lay them on a smooth surface with a thin paper over them. This separates without destroying the gum.

CAREFUL HANDLING IS MOST ESSENTIAL

Growers Will Co-operate With Buyers to Get Best Results From New Tobacco Crop.

Growers and buyers are now working in hearty accord to bring the 1913 tobacco crop of Wisconsin in proper shape for handling. The prices paid during the rush campaign were exceptionally high but the climatic conditions have been against the handling of the medium late and late crops and in consequence the majority of the growers will be forced to wait until early spring the final settlement with the dealers.

Dealers are receiving early crops, which have been fairly well cured and which are in shape for handling but the medium late and late crops which were stripped during the recent casing spell are still causing no end of trouble. The stalks on late tobacco which is still hanging are till thick and juicy and need freezing weather before they will be in shape to take from the poles. In some cases where these crops have already been stripped it has been found necessary to open the bundles, tie the damp tobacco in hands and hang them up to dry, work requiring much care and patience, but necessary if the crop was to be saved at all.

One dealer in speaking of the situation said: "The 1913 crop of Wisconsin tobacco is exceptionally good. It is worth every cent that the buyers paid for it, but the weather conditions have been against its being handled and in consequence it will be late in delivery. The buyers and growers realize this. Buyers have told the growers to allow their tobacco to hang in the sheds until good freezing weather permits the stalks to dry out thoroughly and the butts to become hard. At present these butts are soft and full of juice. They must have good freezing weather to pack the medium late and late stuff harvested the last of September and first of October successfully without heavy loss to the growers and buyers.

Local dealers are confident the crop will come out all right if carefully treated by the growers and the majority of the growers realize they must wait climatic conditions and are handling the crop accordingly.

However this is going to work a hardship in the business as a whole. The growers will not receive their tobacco prices for weeks to come and the warehouses will not be able to work full force until January or February.

MONTICELLO

Monticello, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Charles Snyder is spending a few days at Monroe.

Miss Grace Hetty, one of the local teachers, was called to Monroe Wednesday by the death of her mother, Mrs. Catherine Hetty. The new came as a shock, although not very well, the deceased was in her usual state of health.

Mrs. M. S. Marty and daughter Mavis spent Wednesday in Monroe.

Dangers in Rare Beefsteak.

You may like your beefsteak rare, but there is danger in eating any meat not well cooked. Measles in cows leave boxed-up parasites in the bovine flesh. You do not notice them with the naked eye, but they are there, and if they are not killed by thorough cooking they will cause tapeworm in the digestive organization of the human system, and then follow associated diseases and discomforts.

WINTER SEASON WAS USHERED IN TODAY

Predicted That the Prevailing Winds for Next Three Months Will Be From Southwest.

At just four-thirty this morning, the sun arrived at Capricornus, the southern terminus of its annual journey through the skies. At exactly the same hour, minute and second, astronomers assert, Winter strode into Janesville and the immediate vicinity.

As astronomical time tables schedule Capricornus as the "point of the sun's greatest southern declination," today in Janesville and other cities of the northern hemisphere will be the shortest day of the year.

Persons conversant with the habits of heavenly bodies declare that at its estimated speed of nineteen miles per second it will take the sun eighty and twenty-five minutes to reach the period of the vernal equinox. Spring will be delayed until that time.

Cold Weather Approaches.

With the official blowing of winter cold weather is creeping up on all sides of Janesville. Temperatures show a general drop throughout the entire United States and Canada, with no indication of moderation in the near future. Although exceedingly low temperatures are restricted in the west, middle west and north, decided declines are shown in all sections.

Observations taken at 8 o'clock last night show a temperature of 72 degrees at Miami, Fla., the highest recorded. The lowest temperature was recorded at Lauder, Mont., in 6 degrees below zero.

We are also told that the winds that blow at the time of the actual advent of winter will be the prevailing winds for the next three months. While there is a varied opinion as to the exact direction of the wind at four thirty-five this morning, from authoritative source it is learned that it was from the southwest. This would indicate an open winter with the winds from that direction for the next three months.

Today consequently is our shortest day, yet its daylight is only two or three seconds less than that of yesterday. Sometimes this shorter day falls on December 21, then again on the 22d. Today the sun rises at 7:27, sets at 4:26.

Counted in minutes Sunday and today are of identical length, but as a matter of fact the sun sets today at about 25 minutes and nearly 38 seconds after 4 o'clock or some two seconds short of the 26 full minutes, and by just that many seconds the sunlight is less in duration.

But after today for about ten days the day lengthens at the rate of some twenty seconds a day, and thereafter increasingly until the summer solstice, June 21, when the day will be six hours longer than now. On each June 21 the sun rises at about 4:30 and sets at 7:30—very different from the 7:27 rising today and the setting at 4:26.

DISCOVERS A FLAW IN THE EUGENIC LAW

Milwaukee Attorney Claims to Have Supreme Court Ruling on the Case.

Supporters of the new Wisconsin eugenic marriage law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, are much discouraged by a statement issued by Horace B. Walmesley, a Milwaukee attorney, that under a decision of the state supreme court, a marriage ceremony is unnecessary in Wisconsin and that the physical examination required by the eugenic measure therefore cannot be enforced. The decision will hold after Jan. 1 and the law under which it was rendered cannot be changed until the next meeting of the legislature.

The contention of Mr. Walmesley is based on a decision of the state supreme court of April 8, 1913, which says that any man or woman not married at the time may make a legal and valid contract of marriage without any license, medical examination, priest, clergyman or magistrate. All that is required is that two persons agree to take each other as man and wife and begin living together in that relation.

Signatures Not Necessary.

No written statement nor witnesses are required, but the court suggested that for the benefit of both parties it would be well to sign an agreement as follows:

"The persons who have signed this paper on this day take each other for husband and wife, being then in the state of Wisconsin, and they begin to live together as such husband and wife."

May Record Agreement.

The court also suggested that there be duplicate copies of the agreement so that both parties may be supplied. Then if either party wishes the paper to be made a record with the register of deeds all that is necessary is to have two witnesses sign it, pay a notary public 25 cents and the whole thing is accomplished. The laws requiring licenses, physical examinations and clergymen.

Eugenic supporters are beginning to feel that the law is useless. The opponents of the law are happy and every one is awaiting the new year to see just what will happen.

reasonably Sure.

The only thing you can tell about a young girl is that when she is fifty years old she will look a great deal as her mother looks now.—Philadelphia Ledger.

BUILD UP YOUR SICK STOMACH

Mi-o-na Soothes the Irritated
Membranes, Stimulates and Strengthens the Stomach.

Mi-o-na is one of the most effective and safe remedies for out-of-order stomachs. It increases the flow of gastric juices, soothes the irritated membrane, and quickly and safely benefits the digestive system so that your food is promptly converted into nutrition and the entire system properly nourished. Then you are well and strong.

If you lack an appetite, your tongue is coated, nerves on edge, have risings of sour and undigested food and experience after eating distress you are suffering with indigestion or sick stomach.

Get a fifty cent box of Mi-o-na from Smith Drug Co. and begin now to build up your sick and worn-out stomach. Do not delay, many serious diseases start from what was thought to be only an upset stomach. Money refunded if not benefited.

Brodhead, Dec. 20.—Miss Laura Emery left Friday afternoon for the home of her parents in Iroquois, South Dakota, where she will spend the holiday vacation.

Harold M. Stephens, assistant principal in our city schools, left on Friday for a visit with relatives in Omaha, Neb., and other points in that locality.

Miss Alice Ramage left on Friday for the home of her parents in Sturgeon Bay, to spend the holidays.

Mrs. C. M. Fleck returned to her home in Janesville Friday, after spending some days with friends in Brodhead.

Mrs. A. Short and brother Jacob Klumb, were passengers to Madison Friday for a short stay.

Misses Lathrop and Stafford of Monroe were guests of Brodhead friends Friday evening.

M. O. Luchsinger was a business visitor in Arlington Friday.

Mrs. O. J. Barr spent Friday in Janesville.

Mrs. A. E. Durner returned Friday to her home in Janesville after a few days visit with her sister, Mrs. J. L. Fleck and family.

Dan Finnane of Evansville was a Brodhead business visitor Friday.

In a game of basket ball on Thursday evening between the Monroe high school team and the Brodhead high school team resulted in a victory for the Monroe team. In a preliminary game played between the Monroe

Eagles and the Brodhead All Stars the Brodhead team came out the victors. The high school score was 34 to 24 and the score of the preliminary game was 9 to 12.

The city schools closed Friday for a two weeks vacation.

CAINVILLE CENTER

Cainville Center, Dec. 19.—Last Tuesday the Royal Neighbors held election of officers for the coming year as follows: Orville, Julia Thompson; V. O. Mattie Setzer; P. O., Mildred Napes; Chancellor, Emma Andrews; Recorder, Cassie Townsend; Receiver, Alice Clark; Marshal, Emma Bonnett; Assistant M. Ada Thompson; I. S., Mildred Woodstock; O. S., Florence Wolcott; Manager for three years, Effie Acheson; Manager, Etta McCoy; Physicians, Dr. Lacey Foot, Dr. Colony Evansville, Faith, Fredetta Fraser; Courage, Minnie Keckin; Modesty, Mabel Eastman; Unselfishness, Lulu Moore; Endurance, Lizzie Bennett; Delegates to state meeting, Cassie Townsend, Altemate, Belle Townsend.

The Helpers' Union at Mrs. Dave Andrews' was well attended. Miss Ella Jones the India missionary was present and gave an insight on the foreign land. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mildred Woodstock; Vice President, Mrs. E. B. Arnold; Secretary-Treasurer, Emma Bennett; Work Committee, Cassie Townsend, Ada Thompson and Alma Andrews.

Grandma Chase celebrated her 82nd birthday Tuesday the 16th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Broughton in Evansville. All her children were present and a very enjoyable time was had.

A large crowd greeted Mrs. Ella Jones the India missionary Wednesday evening at the A. C. church. It certainly was a rare treat to hear about the customs of the foreign land. She also exhibited the dress and jewelry of the natives.

Mrs. Emma Cain and Mrs. Hattie Broughton of Evansville attended the H. U. at Mrs. Andrews' Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McCoy of Pitts-ville are visiting relatives and friends.

The date of holding the R. N. A. meeting of Evergreen Camp has been changed. Hereafter it will be held the second and fourth Friday afternoons of each month. The next meeting will be held the 2nd Friday afternoon in January.

Had Enough of "Sport."

When the prince of Wales—later King Edward—visited India he took part in a tiger hunt, mounted on an elephant, with his gillie, Peter Robertson, behind him in the howdah. Suddenly a swarm of bees descended on them and stung both prince and gillie severely. Peter cried out in his agony, regardless of all rank: "What's the use o' stayin' here to be stinged to death by these beasts, a' for the sake o' a dirty tager? Let's awa' and be oot o' it!"

A Christmas Investment in Hospitality

All you men and women who love a "jolly, hearty informal party," find something among your acquaintances to whom you can give an Electric Chafing Dish for Christmas. You will gain the reward of the deserving when the beautiful mystery-dish simmers and steams and emits its savory smells. Whether SHE be wife, daughter, sweetheart, mother or just a friend, get her an Electric Chafing Dish.

Classified Want Ad?

"This bread is not like what Mother used to make," said a young man to his pretty wife the other eve as he gamely tackled a slice of the resisting bread.

"I never baked, John dear, you will have to be patient with me," said Mrs. Newly-wed. "Sometimes I wonder if it would not be cheaper to buy our bread. But there is no place in this town where we can get home grown cooking."

"Then why don't some enterprising woman start baking home-made bread and advertise the fact; bet she'd have orders enough, soon. I'm sure of one thing, she'd have our trade—and gratitude."

This is what happens in one home, there are many such homes all over your city, for young people seem to have a habit of getting married. Until they have mastered the science of bread-making why not sell to them? The demand for home-grown bread is large.

So, to Mrs. Want-to-earn-at-home let us suggest that she run a card in her home paper stating that she will do home baking.

SHOE-FITTING DEVICE

Elastic Band Indicates Where Buttons Should Be Put.

To insure snug-fitting but comfortable uppers on buttoned shoes—custom-made, of course—two Frenchmen have invented a novel fitting apparatus. A bracket that resembles the curve of a big hockey stick is fastened on the horizontal part. Fastened to the bracket at intervals are elastic rods, with studs on the ends and buttonholes adjoining the studs. The man to be fitted for shoes puts on the device, which are all finished but the buttons, and rests his foot on the device. The studs and the elastic rods are thrust through the buttonholes of his shoe, and he moves his foot forward until the upper portion of the shoe fits as it should—snugly and comfortably. Holes for the buttons are then marked through the slits in the ends of the rods.

SHOULD GIVE PERFECT FIT.

The ladies of the Court street church are to give a meeting in their church parlors this week for the purpose of giving Janesville youths a chance to exhibit their tastes to decide by ballot the handsomest girl in Janesville. The votes are to cost ten cents apiece and every individual has the privilege of putting votes in as long as his money lasts. The prize to be awarded will be a handsome gold watch and the biggest prize being the honor for being the fairest young lady in this city.

1913.—Slipperiness: Sidewalks, pavements, tress, houses, hitching posts and horse blocks have been covered with ice during the last week, the whole outside world being transformed into a skating rink, so as to speak. It was about eleven o'clock last evening when we first noticed a lady wending her way home whose movements suggested that she had been to the awkward squad dance.

A gentleman was with her part of the time, but there was a marvelous tendency for him to glide off at angles to her, right, oblique and acute, at the same moment when the lady was wandering off in directly the opposite direction. In front of the corn exchange, they sailed out into the middle of the street, to relieve the monotony of their efforts and rain room breeze coming down Franklin street at that instant, waited them into the street at the foot of a lamp post, where the back of their necks were brought into sudden and unexpected contact. There was some conversation between them over the circumstances but all we could catch was "Jam it, Jane, get up and help a fellow. Finally when they did get up we noticed star shaped spots in the ice, which looked like a pair of pile drivers had been playing a duet there. The last we saw of the couple they were very going slowly up Milwaukee street and they are probably near home by this time.

The ladies of the Court street church are to give a meeting in their church parlors this week for the purpose of giving Janesville youths a chance to exhibit their tastes to decide by ballot the handsomest girl in Janesville. The votes are to cost ten cents ap

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

DOING CHRISTMAS SHOPPING FOR OTHERS.

There is never a Christmas without a thorn. And even Christmas, that rose among all the holidays as the most beautiful and the most generous, has its thorn. For instance, being obliged by constraint or courtesy to assist in other people's Christmas shopping. Shopping for other people is bad enough even when it is only buying the simplest things. It isn't that you aren't willing to spend the time and energy, but complications are so sure to develop. Would you mind getting a spoon of oven grease for your neighbor? Or a box of soap? "They have it at J's." It sounds perfectly simple, but of course it's not. That particular shade. You try at two other places with no better results, debate at length whether to take the next lighter or the next darker shade, and finally decide on the latter. You carry it home in fear and trembling and knock at once by the expression on your neighbor's face and the flat tones of her voice as she assures you that it will do nicely and that is much obliged, that it don't do at all and that she really thinks you might have shown better judgment. But if buying a spoon of silk to please one person is hard, there is no word in the English language strong enough to describe the difficulty of buying Christmas presents to suit three people—yourself, the donor and the recipient. If two out of the three are satisfied, the third is sure not to be. I shall never forget one of my own experiences in this line. One year when I had practically all my own shopping done by December 1st, it fell to my lot to buy Christmas presents for one of my relatives who was unexpectedly unable to buy her own. I know this woman and her tastes quite well, but I do not know all her relatives and their tastes and by the time I had finished the fiddish and thought-requiring task of buying gifts for grandmother, Martin and sister-in-law Grace and brother-in-law Edward, etc., etc. (some of whom I have never even met), I was far more tired than if I had done my own shopping three times over. The fact that you cannot have the same elasticity in choice and in price is another thing that makes Christmas shopping for others very difficult. If you yourself plan to buy a pair of fur lined gloves for $3, after looking in two or three shops, you find nothing under $4, you probably pay $4. But if you have been told by someone else to pay $3 you don't feel like spending the extra dollar, at least not without consulting her. In the same way, if you do not find the particular article which you pictured, you can pick out something else which would do as well, but the proxy shopper may not do this. Of course there are many times when it is absolutely necessary that Christmas shopping should be done by proxy. Sudden illness, chronic invalidism, pressing business demands and numerous other possible contingencies make it so. And to resent or complain of this necessity would be to deny the spirit of Christmas, so perhaps I shouldn't have written this. But this I will say, anyone for whom Christmas shopping is done ought to be very, very grateful, for he has received a generous Christmas gift of time and energy.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. When sewing on hooks make your hem the desired width. Run a corset steel through it. Sew the hooks on and then remove the steel. Never throw away old stove brushes when they are worn out. Cover them with an old black stocking, enough to make a thick pad. Tuck over this a piece of black velvet. This used about the stove after cooking will always keep it looking nice. If the red ties of the vestibule become dry, try rubbing them with lemon dipped in salt. After an hour wash in the usual way. The ties will be perceptibly brightened. If the baby is afraid of water or cries when put in his bath, place some water toys in it and you will have very little trouble. THE TABLE. Baked Macaroni—Break into inch lengths half a pound of macaroni. Boil it until tender in weak broth. Drain off the liquor; put the macaroni in a pudding dish that will stand the fire; pour over it a half cupful of the stock in which it was boiled, and put a tablespoonful of butter, broken into small pieces, here and there through it. Sift over it fine bread crumbs and grated cheese; dot with bits of butter and brown in the oven. Orange Souffle—Cut stale sponge cake into small cubes and saturate with orange juice; pour into a dish and pour over it rich custard. Cover with a good meringue, brown nicely and serve. Bananas Fried Whole—Peel and cut off the tip of each end; sprinkle with pepper and salt, roll in beaten eggs, then in fine crumbs, again in egg, and again in crumbs. Leave them upon ice for an hour or two, and fry in deep, boiling fat to a delicate brown. Serve very hot. Carrot Croquettes—Wash and scrape, and cook until very tender. Mash smooth and beat to a paste with the yolk of a raw egg, a good spoonful of softened butter, pepper and salt to taste. Let this paste get cold and stiff before making into croquettes or balls. Roll in beaten eggs, then in fine crumbs; set on the ice for an hour, and dry in deep fat. Drain and serve hot. Fried Eggplant—Peel an eggplant and cut into slices half an inch thick. Lay in cold salt water for an hour, wipe each slice dry and dip, first in beaten egg, and then in cracker dust. Set in a cold place for an hour and fry in deep, boiling fat. Drain in a heated colander before dishing. Onion Cream Soup—Into a quart of mutton stock slice six large onions and simmer for an hour. Rub through a colander, return to the fire and thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour, rubbed to a paste with two of butter. Bring a half pint of milk to the boiling point and stir it into the soup. Season with salt, white pepper and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Fried Brook Trout—Clean with care, roll in peppered and salted flour, set on ice for an hour, and fry immediately in deep fat to a golden brown. Have a mat of folded and heated tissue paper fringed at the ends, and lay the drained fish upon it. Serve at once. Baked Asparagus—Cut the tender halves of the asparagus stalks into inch lengths. Cook for fifteen minutes in salted boiling water, then drain. Grease a pudding dish and put in the bottom a layer of the asparagus. Sprinkle this with fine bread crumbs, bits of butter, pepper and salted and small pieces of hard-boiled egg. Now put in another layer of asparagus, more crumbs, etc., and so on until the dish is full. The last layer must be sprinkled with crumbs and bits of butter. Bake for half an hour and serve in the dish in which it is cooked.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy seventeen years old. I pledged my friendship to a girl seven years ago in an orphan asylum. I left there and the girl left three months after. I haven't seen the girl nor heard from her and I like another girl very much. Shall I wait to hear from the first girl or go with the second girl? I never spoke to the second girl and I don't know any of her friends. How shall I get acquainted? PUZZLED. There is no reason why you should not have plenty of girl friends, my lad. Pledging your friendship to one girl is not a crime, it is a duty. If you mean that you must never be friendly toward another girl. You were entirely too young to engage yourself to any girl at that time. I hope, if you ever meet the first girl, that you will feel yourself her loyal friend. I hope, also, that you will find she has made many other friends since she last saw you. Get acquainted with the second girl, if you wish, but don't make up your mind that you are in love with her right away. You may not care much for her after you know her better. You are still too young to think seriously of marrying and "going with" a girl steadily is apt to make her think that you want to marry her. Just be nice and friendly. Manage to get acquainted with her father, or brother, if she has one. Then it will be easy to meet the girl. Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) How may I get rid of my pimples? (2) Is it nice for a girl of fifteen years old to go to a dance given by her friends? (3) What color dress would be nice for a girl to wear to a dance in the winter? LONESOME. (1) Keep your digestion good and your bowels open; take a dose of Epsom salts when necessary to keep bowels moving freely. Drink at least three pints of pure water every day. Exercise outdoors every day. Eat nourishing food and do not eat greasy foods, candies, rich pastries or gravies. Plenty of fruits and vegetables are good for you. Also, use plenty of soap and water to wash every day. Massage the pimples with a good cold cream every night and then wipe off all the cream. Prick pimples, when soft, with a clean needle and press out gently, then put on a drop of peroxide. (2) It is all right if your parents are willing. An older member of the family should take you and bring you home, if it is a night. (3) Any color that is becoming to her. Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of sixteen and I have been going with a young man until lately. He doesn't seem to care for me now. When he meets me on the street he speaks to me. I love him very dearly and would like to go around with him again. He does not go around with any other girl. How can I win him back? (2) I know a boy and have been out with him several times and now he is very sick. Please tell me if it is proper to send him a gift; if so, what would be nice for him? PERPLEXED. (1) The boy is just tired of going with you, I suspect. Leave him alone,

CHAPTER VI.

A Tip From Headquarters.

AGGIE gave herself over to more cigarettes in an easy chair sprawled out in an attitude of comfort never taught in any finishing school for young ladies. Soon the coming of Joe Garson, who was usually in and out of the apartment a number of times daily, provided a welcome diversion. Aggie explained in response to his question that Mary had gone out to keep an engagement with Dick Glider.

"Mary has been with him a good deal lately," he said, half questioningly.

"That's what," was the curt agreement.

"Think she's stuck on him?"

"Why not?" Aggie retorted. "Bet your life I'd be if I had a chance. He's a swell boy, and his father's got the coin too."

At this the man moved impatiently, and his eyes wandered to the window. Again Aggie studied him with a swift glance of interrogation.

"Joe, if there's anything on your mind shoot it."

"It's Mary," Garson explained, with some embarrassment; "her and young Glider."

"Well?" came the crisp question.

"Well, somehow," Garson went on, still somewhat confusedly, "I can't see any good of it for her."

"Why?" Aggie demanded, in surprise.

"Old man Glider's got a big pull, and if he caught on to his boy's going with Mary he'd be likely to send the police after us—strong! Believe me, I ain't looking for any trip up the river."

"We ain't done nothin' they can touch us for," Mary said so.

"Whether we do anything or whether we haven't don't matter," he objected. "Once the police set out after you they'll get you. Russia ain't in it with some of the things I have seen pulled off in this town."

"Oh, can that 'frail talk' Aggie exclaimed roughly. "I tell you they can't get us. We've got our fingers crossed."

A noise at the hall door interrupted her, and she looked up to see a man, while behind him appeared the maid, protesting angrily.

"Never mind that announcing thing with me," the newcomer rasped to the expostulating servant in a voice that suited well his thick set figure, with the bullet-shaped head and the bull-like neck. "He was Cassidy, who had had Mary Turner in his charge on the occasion of her ill fated visit to Edward Glider's office four years before."

"Hello, Joe," he cried familiarly. "Hello, Aggie."

"Well?" Joe demanded.

"Just a little friendly call," Cassidy announced in his strident voice. "Where's the lady of the house?"

"Out," Aggie spoke very sharply.

"Well, Joe," Cassidy went on, "when she comes back just tell her it's up to her to make a getaway and to make it quick."

"Say," Aggie retorted viciously, "you can't throw any scare into us. You can't get anything on us. See?"

"Nothing on you, eh? Well, well, let's see," Cassidy regarded Garson with a grin. "You are Joe Garson, forger?"

As he spoke the detective took a notebook from a pocket, found a page, and then read: "First arrested in 1901 for forging the name of Edwin Goodsell to a check for $10,000. Again arrested June 19, 1903, for forgery. Arrested in April, 1908, for forging the signature of Oscar Hemmings to a series of bonds that were counterfeited. Arrested as the man back of the Reilly gang in 1903. Arrested in 1908 for forgery."

"Haven't any records of convictions, have you?"

"No, but we've got the right dose on you, all right, Joe Garson," he turned savagely on the girl.

"And you're little Aggie Lynch," Cassidy declared as he thrust the note-

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded.

book back into his pocket. "Just now you're posing as Mary Turner's cousin. You served two years in Burnside for blackmail. You were arrested in Buffalo, convicted and served your stretch. Nothing on you? Well, well!"

Again there was triumph in the officer's chuckle. He went on speaking with obvious enjoyment of the extent to which his knowledge reached.

"And the head of the gang is Mary Turner. Arrested four years ago for robbing the Emporium. Did her stretch of three years."

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded with such abruptness that Cassidy forgot his dignity sufficiently to answer with an unqualified yes.

"Nothing in your record of her about her coming out without a friend in the world and trying to go straight? You ain't got nothing in that pretty little book of yours about your going to the millinery store where she finally got a job and tipping them off to where she come from?"

"Sure, they was tipped off. We got to protect the city."

"Got anything in that record of your'n?" Garson went on venomously, "about her getting another job and your following her up again and carrying her thrown out? Got it there about the letter you had old Glider write, so that his influence would get her camed?"

"Oh, we had her right the first time," Cassidy declared.

"You did not. She was railroaded for a job she never done. She went in honest, and she came out honest."

"And that's why she's here now with a gang of crooks," Cassidy retorted.

"Where else should she be?" Garson demanded violently. "You ain't got nothing in that record about my jumping into the river after her. That's where I found her—a girl that never done nobody any harm, starving because you police wouldn't give her a chance to work. In the river because she wouldn't take the only other way that was left her to make a living, because she was keeping straight! Have you got any of that in your book?"

"Anyway," the officer went on, with a new confidence, now that his eyes were free from the gaze that had burned into his soul, "you've got to clear out, the whole gang of you—and do it quick."

"We don't scare worth a cent," Aggie snipped, with the violence of a vixen. "You can't do anything to us. We ain't broke the law." There came a sudden ripple of laughter, and the charming lips curved joyously as she added, "Though perhaps we have bent it a bit."

"Well, you've got the tip," Cassidy returned, somewhat disconcerted, after a stolid fashion of his own. "It's up to you to take it, that's all. If you don't one of you will make a long visit with some people out of town, and it'll probably be Mary. Remember, I'm giving it to you straight."

Cassidy turned and went noisily out of the drawing room. As she heard the outer door close behind the detective Aggie's expression grew vicious.

"The 'trick house detective' she sneered. "An eighteen collar and a six and a half hat! He sure had his nerve trying to bluff us!"

"Perhaps it wasn't a bluff, Aggie," Garson suggested.

"Well, what have we done, I'd like to know?"

Garson answered with a note of weariness that was unlike him.

"It ain't what you have done," he said quietly. "It's what they can make a jury think you've done. And, once they set out to get you—God, how they can frame things! If they ever start out after Mary"—He did not finish the sentence, but sank down into his chair with a groan that was almost of despair.

CHAPTER VII.

A Legal Document.

MARY TURNER spent less than an hour in that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Glider of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris' office.

Harris regarded his client with an appreciative eye as he bowed in greeting and invited her to a seat.

"I sent your cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch, the release which she is to sign," he explained, "when she gets that money from General Hastings. I wish you'd look it over when you have time. It's all right, I'm sure, but I appreciate your opinion of things, Miss Turner—particularly of legal documents."

"Thank you," Mary said. "And have you heard from them yet?"

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until tomorrow. If I don't hear then I shall start suit at once." Then the lawyer's manner became unusually bland and self-satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal.

"You will be glad to know," he went on enthusiastically, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner, Portia was a squawking baby compared with you."

"Thank you again," Mary answered as she took the legal paper. For a moment her glance ran over the words of the page.

"It's splendid!" she declared. "Did you have much trouble in getting it?"

"Why, no," he declared. "But at the outset when I made the request the judge just nearly fell off the bench. Then I showed him that Detroit case to which you had drawn my attention, and the upshot of it all was that he gave me what I wanted without a whimper. He couldn't help himself, you know."

That mysterious document with the imposing seal reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment.

Mary had scarcely received from Aggie an account of Cassidy's threatening invasion when the maid announced that Mr. Irwin had called.

"Show him in," Mary directed.

"Who's the gink?" Aggie demanded.

"You ought to know. He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach of promise suit."

"Hope he's brought the money," Mary ordered. "When I call to you come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my lead. And, Aggie, be very ingenious."

"Oh, I'm wise—I'm wise," Aggie nodded as she hurried off toward her bedroom. "I'll be a squab—surest thing you know!"

Next moment Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer who represented the man she planned to mulct effectively.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.

"I called in reference to this suit which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client General Hastings."

"It's not a threat," Mr. Irwin. "The suit will be brought."

"You realize, of course, that this is merely plain blackmail."

"If it's blackmail, Mr. Irwin, why don't you consult the police?"

Mary turned to the maid, who now entered in response to the bell she had sounded a minute before. "Fanny, will you ask Miss Lynch to come in, please?" Then she faced the lawyer again, with an aloofness of manner that was contemptuous. "Really, Mr. Irwin, she drew, 'why don't you take this matter to the police?'"

"You know perfectly well," the lawyer said bitterly, "that General Hastings cannot afford such publicity."

"Oh, as for that," Mary suggested evenly, and now there was a trace of flippancy in her fashion of speaking. "I'm sure the police would keep your complaint a secret. Really, you know, Mr. Irwin, I think you had better take your troubles to the police rather than to me. You will get much more sympathy from them."

The lawyer sprang up with an air of sudden determination.

"Very well, I will then," he declared. Mary pushed in his direction the telephone that stood on the table.

"3100 Spring," she remarked encouragingly, "will bring an officer almost immediately." She leaned back in her chair and surveyed the baffled man amusedly.

"Nevertheless," he rejoined, "you know perfectly well that General Hastings never promised to marry this girl. You know"—He broke off as Aggie entered the drawing room.

ings never promised to marry this girl. You know"—He broke off as Aggie entered the drawing room.

Now, the girl was demure in seeming almost beyond belief—a childish creature, very fair and dainty, guileless surely, with those untouchable eyes of blue, those softly curving lips of warmest red and the more delicate bloom and the rounded cheeks. There were the charms of innocence and simplicity in her manner as she stopped just within the doorway, whence she regarded Mary with a timid, pleading gaze, her slender little form poised lightly as if for flight.

"Did you want me, dear?" she asked.

"Agnes," Mary answered affectionately, "this is Mr. Irwin, who has come to see you in behalf of General Hastings."

"Oh," the girl murmured, her voice quivering a little as the lawyer, after a short nod, dropped again into his seat. "Oh, I'm so frightened!" She hurried, fluttering, to a low stool behind the desk beside Mary's chair, and there she sank down, drooping slightly and catching hold of one of Mary's hands as if in mute pleading for protection.

"Nonsense!" Mary exclaimed soothingly. "There's really nothing at all to be frightened about, my dear child. You mustn't be afraid, Agnes. Mr. Irwin says that General Hastings did not promise to marry you. Of course you understand, my dear, that under no circumstances must you say anything that isn't strictly true and that asked: "How do you think I can get off here?" and the conductor replied: "I cannot tell you, madam, but I do know that we can't wait until the puddle dries up."

In a western city are two councilmen, Bygones and Barque, who love nothing better than to score each other. One evening Councilman Barque was calling attention to grimy statues "and other unsightly objects in the Central ward," when his hated rival sprang to his feet. "Well," remarked Bygones, "I've lived in the Central ward all my life, and I know of no unsightly object."

"Fardon me," went on Barque, "but I, too, live in Central ward—" "Oh!" flashed out Bygones, "then I withdraw my statement."

"WHITE HOUSE" GREETING From the New Proprietors.

We are not going to begin by telling you we are selling goods for half-price—delivering them and giving credit—in fact doing anything if you will only come and take the goods away. We do tell you, and will prove to your satisfaction, that we can sell goods at a smaller profit and make as much money as any competitor in Janesville, and we will not back down on meeting the prices you "think" you get from catalogue houses.

First. We do not sell on credit.

Second. We buy from responsible houses only—and for cash.

Third. We are not extravagant—making big displays of fancy goods.

If you grasp the full meaning of this you will see the advantage of coming to the White House. When you buy goods that look and wear well—at a right price—you will admit it is better for you than buying in a store with fancy fixtures and decorations, as they must add a percentage to the cost of the goods you buy. Good merchandise and small profits is our aim. Our store may be comparatively plain, but values are distinctive. We aim to keep a good line of dry goods, underwear, hosiery, house-dresses, sweaters, quilts, blankets, a nice line of dress goods, ready to wear garments, boots, shoes, slippers, rubbers and over-shoes. In fact we will try to keep the very best lines of serviceable goods at as low prices as possible. No trouble to show goods. Give us a call. White House, 19 and 21 S. River St. Fifty feet from the high rent district.

SECOND MRS. VANDERVELT

By A. H. LAIDLAW.

"Mrs. Vandervelt will be down in a few moments, sir," the servant said, as she ushered the visitor into the drawing room.

Vandervelt gazed about the room and his eyes rested on a photograph lying on the table. It was the portrait of his divorced wife—the woman who "would be down in a few moments."

"A picture of her," he muttered, with a wistful, but hopeless look in his eyes. He still loved her—yes, loved her more than ever before—but he knew now that this folly had built a barrier between them that could never be torn asunder.

"A picture of her—just as she looked when I last saw her; at least, just as she would have looked had she been happy. How she must hate me now. God knows, I deserve the hate."

The man who had once been strong and brave and reckless dropped into an armchair beside the table and buried his face in his hands. Mrs. Vandervelt entered and looked upon the picture of despair. She stepped lightly, and so deeply engrossed was he in his bitter thoughts that Vandervelt did not hear her as she approached.

"Allen," she said, softly, her voice quivering, as she put her hand on his head and stroked his hair.

Vandervelt started violently. He was frightened, so suddenly was he awakened from his meditation, and bounded from the chair as he would have leaped from a railway track to escape death beneath the wheels of an approaching train.

"Allen," she finally said again in a voice tremulous with emotion, "you—come back to—me."

"Ask your forgiveness," he supplied. "to stay?" she finished.

"To ask your forgiveness," he repeated. He took a step forward, looked up at her and burst forth passionately:

"Margaret, I want you to listen to my confession. God, how wrong I've been."

She put up her hand and shook her head and she stopped.

"Don't," she said. "Please don't tell me. Let me spare you that—and myself. I could not listen to any confession. I forgive you without the confession. I know you did not love—that other woman. You did not love her—did you, Allen?"

Vandervelt replied brokenly and remorsefully:

"No. I did not love her. It was merely infatuation—a false infatuation. I never loved any woman but you."

"I knew it. I knew it," she continued. "I knew you would come back—and everything would be all right. We can begin over again and we can be so happy, for I love you so—I love you so."

A light of happiness had sprung into her eyes as she spoke, and she rushed toward him and put her arms about his neck.

"Allen, I forgive you," and she kissed him. He could not resist and he could not resist. He was powerless and stood motionless, almost limp, with eyes cast toward the floor.

His attitude produced a frightened light in her eyes, and she drew away from him as she released him.

"Oh, I had forgotten the divorce," she said. "I had forgotten the divorce. We are not husband and wife. What folly that divorce was."

Then the look of fright disappeared and she almost laughed as she continued:

"But after all, that need not be a barrier, Allen. We can be lovers again, and you can ask me to marry you as you did that beautiful afternoon in the rose garden—at father's and mother's—that sweet, beautiful afternoon. And I can say 'Yes,' and then—then—Oh, Allen, we can bury the past. Can't we, Allen, dear?"

She had put her arms about his neck again and spoke with passionate appeal.

Vandervelt broke away from her and broke into a sob as he bitterly exclaimed, pacing the floor:

"Why did I ever come back? I have returned only to torture you. I might have known—you could not know."

"What do you mean?" The look of fright again appeared in her eyes and again she brushed her hand across her face. "Can't everything be all right again?"

"It can never be," he continued bitterly. "It can never be. I am a married man. Oh, why did I ever do it?"

She gave a startled cry and tottered as both hands went to her head. She would have fallen had he not caught her and assisted her to the arm chair.

"Then—you—married—her?" Her lips quivered violently. "She—is—your—wife and is—living?"

"Yes."

"And you—didn't—come—back—to—stay?"

"No. I came for your forgiveness. I had to have it. I couldn't live any longer without it—and I thought I might get to see the boy."

"You—you have—my—forgiveness—now leave me—please."

Vandervelt left the house silently, filled with the mental anguish and remorse he had hoped would be partly obliterated by her forgiveness.

Ample Proof.

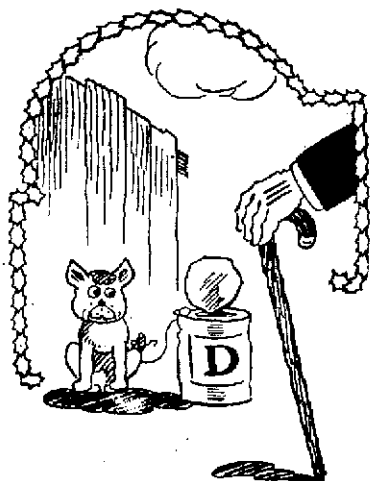

"I suppose you consider your vacation a success?"

"Sure. I got a coat of tan, was double-crossed by a fair female and spent all my money."

Amiable Court Witness.

A Maori woman who gave evidence at a Stratford, New Zealand, inquest showed a degree of amiability somewhat rare in the witness box. When she faced the jury, she made a remark, which, on being interpreted, was found to be a wish that health, wealth and prosperity might ever abide with the jury individually and collectively. After finishing her evidence she again voiced the wish before leaving the box.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

It don't take long to squander your influence.

No self-made man ever made such a good job that some woman didn't succeed in making a few alterations.

Vandervelt broke away from her and broke into a sob as he bitterly exclaimed, pacing the floor:

"Why did I ever come back? I have returned only to torture you. I might have known—you could not know."

"What do you mean?" The look of fright again appeared in her eyes and again she brushed her hand across her face. "Can't everything be all right again?"

ON THE STREET

SUCH IS LIFE.

Apparently Ripe for School.

Bulwer Lytton must have been something of an infant terrible if we may accept the testimony of his grandson, Lord Lytton, who has just delivered a lecture in London. Lord Lytton said: "At the age of nine this precocious reader of books startled his mother by saying: 'Pray, mamma, are you not sometimes overcome with the sense of your own identity?' His mother replied: 'It is high time you went to school, Teddy.'"

Strides Made in Surgery.

Thanks to the assiduous study and persistent experiment of medical enthusiasts, surgical science has reached a level where none dare dogmatize upon its limits. It has, next to the laboratory, made a new era exalting medical lore and research among the mightiest excellencies of a marvelous age. Sufferers whose desperate plight was once judged hopeless have the greatest reason to rejoice over the victories of surgical research and experiment.

MISUNDERSTOOD.

Magistrate—You are charged with breaking a chair over this man's head. Prisoner—I didn't mean to break the chair, your honor.

Average Man Not an Artist.

An English clergyman recently was instrumental in furnishing an evidence of the persistency of the primitive in modern man. For the amusement of his parishioners, and for the purpose of bringing to light any undiscovered genius which might be lying dormant among them, he instituted a competition in wood carving, selecting such subjects as man on horseback, walking, plowing and performing simple and common actions. The results were startling. In practically every instance they bore striking resemblance to the efforts of our ancient and prehistoric forebears.

Old Nursery Rhymes. Some of our favorite nursery rhymes can be traced back many hundreds of years. "Sing a Song of Sixpence" was popular in the sixteenth century. "Three Blind Mice" was sung in the reign of James I. "The Frog and the Mouse" amused the children in the days of Queen Elizabeth. "Girls and Boys Come Out to Play" was well known in the reign of Charles II., and the immortal "Humpty Dumpty" perhaps is of the greatest antiquity.

Simpson's GARMENT STORE

HOW MANY OF THESE STRUCTURES CAN YOU NAME?
"THEY ARE ALL FAMOUS."
RESERVED SEATS FOR LYMAN H. HOWES' TRAVEL
FESTIVAL FOR NEAREST CORRECT LISTS.

How many of the world's famous structures which appear in this composite illustration can you name?
The Gazette offers reserved seats for Lyman H. Howes' Travel Festival at the Myers Theatre on Dec. 25 to each of the first twenty people sending in the lists nearest correct to the Gazette office before Dec. 24, noon, addressed to the "Famous Building Editor," of the Gazette.
Note that each building in the group is numbered.
All you need to do is simply to put down numbers from 1 to 7, on ONE SIDE of a sheet of paper. Then write opposite each number the name of the building you recognize.
Then be sure to have your list reach the Gazette office before Dec. 24, noon. Write plainly and give your name and address on your list.
The Gazette will publish the list of winner in its issue of Wednesday.

The structures are notable for their historic as well as for their architectural importance. One of them is famous and unique because it is really a combined fortress, imperial palace, national treasury, arsenal and a sacred temple. It is located in Russia and was the turning point of Napoleon's disastrous invasion of that country. Its battlements successfully withstood the successive shocks of war and even of a great conflagration. From its towers great bells, some weighing over one hundred thousand tons, remind the population of religious duties. It also contains most of the 850 cannons captured by the Russians from the French in 1812. All the Czars are crowned in its confines, or rather they crown themselves, as no one is deemed worthy at the solemn moment to place upon the emperor's brow the crown of sovereignty save the emperor himself.

The buildings reproduced in the above illustration are respectively the tallest, the oldest, the longest, the most beautiful, the most unique and the most important in the world.
That they are truly cosmopolitan and representative of world-wide architecture is indicated by the fact that the seven structures are located in seven different lands—the United States, England, France, Russia, India, China and Italy.
How many buildings can you name? It is peculiarly fitting that for a contest concerning the most famous structures in the world, reserved seats should be awarded to see the new program of Howes' Travel Festival because—like the subjects used in this contest—one of Howes' big new feature portraits architecture, but there the comparison ends. The architecture of an entirely different kind. Alan was the architect of all the structures used for this contest but Nature is the architect of the structure to be shown in the new program—the Grand Canyon in Arizona—and this architecture is molded and carved on such a stupendous scale that the mightiest works of mankind sink into insignificance in comparison.

A motor ride through the French Alps; by aeroplane over Paris; the infinite variety of polyps which build the coral islands of tropic seas; a study in palmistry; a spectacular fire consuming several hundred thousand barrels of oil; superb thrilling scenes off Monte Carlo; and thrilling rescues of survivors through raging seas from a big ship dashed on the rocks, are a few of the many other features to be presented.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

ALL TRUTH is no less dear, or radically true, whether it dawns today on thoughts, or has been named, beloved, and had its work to do, been recognized, and anchored by, a thousand years.

CANNED SALMON.

Not all of us are able to have the fresh fish on our tables, but anybody with a small amount of money can provide it, canned, for any season of the year. If it is desired to serve salmon as a fish course, plunge the can into boiling water and let it remain for about fifteen minutes, or until well heated through. Open and turn out on a hot platter, garnish with parsley and serve with Hollandaise sauce.

Hollandaise Sauce.—Beat a half cup of butter to a cream, add slowly the yolks of three eggs and the juice of a lemon, season with a dash of cayenne and half a teaspoon of salt. Cook in a double boiler, stirring all the time until it is like a thick custard. Be careful not to overcook or the sauce will be ruined.

A very pretty way to serve salmon as a luncheon dish is to steam it in a small bread pan, mixing a half cup of crumbs, seasoning and an egg to make it mold well; unmold on a platter and surround with peas.

Another good supper or luncheon dish is this: Arrange the fish, flaked and heaped in a dainty pile (having bones and skin removed) in the center of a chop plate, or platter, surround it with potato, seasoned and put through a ricer, and around the potato a thick white sauce. Keep hot in the oven and serve piping hot. The dish may be set into a dripping pan of hot water to keep hot.

Salmon Chowder.—Chop coarsely and brown together in a saucepan, a fourth of a pound of salt pork and one onion. Add a pint of raw potatoes, chopped or cut in dice, which have stood half an hour in cold water. Season and cover with boiling water, simmer for half an hour. Then add a can of salmon, drained and flaked, two or three broken crackers and a pint of scalded milk or thin cream. One may vary the flavor by adding a chopped green pepper or a can of tomatoes.

Salmon Croquettes.—Make a custard of a pint of milk, two eggs and a teaspoonful of salt, cook in a double boiler until it thickens. Remove the oil, skin and bones from a can of salmon, flake it and add a few bread crumbs and some of the white sauce to make it easy to roll into croquettes. Dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Why Spain Lags Behind.

In thousands of villages and small towns in the interior of Spain no one knows how to read or write. There are in Spain 30,000 rural villages without schools of any kind and many thousands which can be reached only by a bridle path, there being no high roads or railway communication of any kind. Attendance at board schools is voluntary, not obligatory. Seventy-six per cent. of the children in Spain are illiterate, and this is especially noticeable in the capital.

"Instinct" of Flowers.

One of the naturalists in an arctic expedition noticed that, although the summer sun shone through the nights, the plants made no mistake, but when the sun got round to the west they closed up as if the sun had really set. An eclipse of the sun has had the same effect.

Economical Kansas Housewife.

The Lamont Leader tells of a woman who is so economical that when a fly fell into the sirup she picked the fly out and licked the sirup off.—Kansas City Star.

Give Us a Rest.

Backward, turn backward, O Time in thy flight, let us forget, for only a night, all of the items of present day news, all of the magazines and the reviews, all of the telegrams and auto cars, all of the research concerning old Mars, all of the railroads, electric or steam, all of the operas they write by the ream, all the inventions for saving of time, all of the scandals and latter day crime, all of the new fangled literature, all of the dope and the food that's impure, all of the craft that is meant to ensnare, all of the graft that we find everywhere, high cost of living and currency, too, let's with the Pankhurstites ever be through, let us forget all this for awhile, let us just sample our granddaddy's style, of living, for once—this is no idle jest, please, Father Time, won't you give us a rest?

The Diary of the Bonehead.

My young son desired a dog. I had always heard that it was a good plan to bring a child and a dog up together and yesterday I inserted in our paper an innocent looking little advertisement to the effect that I was in need of a tame dog to play with my child. The ad cost me only 15 cents, but it cost more than $15 worth of time and the damage in wear and tear on the nervous system will never be repaired.

This morning about 4 o'clock the little ad that I inserted last evening began to work. There was a terrific racket beneath my bedroom window and I looked out to observe the finest dog fight I had ever seen in my life. It was between a bulldog with a face like one of the gates of the Panama canal, and a large wolf dog that looked as though it had been reared in Siberia. To each dog was attached a string and on the end of each string was a small boy. The boys made more noise than the dogs did. Finally, I jumped out in my pajamas and with the aid of a crowbar pried the two dogs apart.

By that time there were seven more boys with dogs on my front lawn. In fifteen minutes, I counted forty-seven and every dog was of a different breed and nationality. There were rat dogs and thin dogs, hairy dogs, bald dogs, long dogs and short dogs and they varied in color from an Italian sunset to a patent leather polish. Boys with dogs continued to arrive and by breakfast time it was necessary to telephone to police headquarters for help. Three neighbors had threatened to have me arrested for a breach of the peace. There were three fights going on all the time and sometimes seven or eight.

I finally bought one of those long, low rakish animals known as a dachshund, one built on the bungalow style of architecture and chained it to a post in the back yard. In an hour it had chewed off the post and had gone to join its former owner. I bade my $7 good bye. Then I went to the ten cent store and bought a waddy dog which will answer the purpose as long as I can fool the kid with it.

Government Would Teach.

The part failure of certain tree crops in Hungary, and a certain amount of indifference in this regard among the growers in some districts, have given the Hungarian government concern and caused it to institute at various places regular courses and lectures on the subject of fruit growing in general, as well as special courses and lectures in regard to the various branches of the business.

Art of Memory.

The best way to remember a thing is thoroughly to understand it and often to recall it to mind. By reading continually with great attention, and never passing a passage without understanding and considering it well, the memory will be stored with knowledge, and things will occur at times when we want them, though we can never recollect the passage or from whence we draw our ideas.
